

The role of containerized energy storage systems

Overview

It serves as a rechargeable battery system capable of storing large amounts of energy generated from renewable sources like wind or solar power, as well as from the grid during low-demand periods. When needed, this stored energy can be discharged to provide a dependable electricity. A Containerized Energy-Storage System, or CESS, is an innovative energy storage solution packaged within a modular, transportable container. These containers are used as spacers where excess energy produced in the peak times can be stored and spent in low production times.
